The Four Loves, written by C.S. Lewis and originally published in 1960, presents the author's philosophical and theological differentiation of four types of love:

Friendship, Affection, Eros, and Charity. Affection, Friendship, and Eros are classified as natural (116) loves, while Charity receives a higher distinction in that it is closest to the type of love that is defined by the maxim God is love (1), the premise that underlies all of his arguments. Charity is discussed as a

The Four Loves, C.S. Lewis The Four Loves is a book by C. S. Lewis which explores the nature of love from a Christian and philosophical perspective through thought experiments. The book was based on a set of radio talks from 1958. Taking his start from St. John's words "God is Love", Lewis initially thought to contrast "Need-love" (such as the love of a child for its mother) and "Gift-love" (epitomized by God's love for humanity), to the disparagement of the former. However he swiftly
